The Algarve: The best kind of incentive.

It has been clearly shown that the optimism of a group of workers is reflected in their increased productivity. What remains for you to discover, as you unfold the secrets of the many different landscapes to be found in the region, is that the Algarve has had a direct impact on the outlook of a number of companies and industries who have held business events in the region.

Forget conferences, incentive meetings or business meetings held in small rooms in the midst of grey industrial areas. Trust the people who know how to host business tourism and have an array of original and suitably equipped infrastructures on offer.

The Algarve benefits from good road, rail and air links with a large number of European capitals. It has annual temperatures in winter of around 15° C/59° F and an extensive supply of four and five star hotel accommodation, as well as other venues suitable to host a variety of events.

The region's unique venues include: The Roman auditorium in Sítio das Fontes, the arcades of the Municipal Museum of Faro, and the fort in Sagres in the far southwest of Portugal or, if you wish to put history aside and try out a more modern alternative, the Conference Centre in Arade or the Portimão Arena are the perfect venues for you.

And, between appointments, there is a world of teambuilding activities to choose from including eco-adventures, panoramic walks, nautical sports, cruises, workshops, an adrenalin-filled drive around the Algarve's Autodrome or even a unique opportunity to fly your own plane!

It is no accident that the Algarve is becoming increasingly popular as a business tourism destination, made possible by the perfect balance of business and pleasure that it offers.
